

Frequently Asked Questions

Seismic has acquired Lessonly! Let's talk about what this means for you as a current Lessonly customer.

Q: What is Seismic?

A: Seismic is the global leader in sales enablement with over 1M users across 50+ countries. Founded in 2010, the company has pioneered the sales enablement industry. The company is headquartered in San Diego with over 1,000 employees across 13 different offices. More than 700 organizations, such as IBM, American Express, and 22 out of the top 25 asset management firms, trust Seismic as their sales enablement platform. Seismic has been named as a best startup employer in America by Forbes in 2020 and 2021. Additionally, they have been recognized by Inc. Best Workplaces, 2020 Forbes Cloud 100, and 2020 Deloitte Fast 500. Visit seismic.com for more information.

Q: Do I have access to Seismic now?

A: If you are not an existing Seismic customer, you will not have automatic access to Seismic. For more information about the Seismic + Lessonly integration and solution, reach out to your account manager, and they'll be able to walk you through next steps. You can also visit lessonly.com/seismic.

Q: Is the way I contact Lessonly support the same?

A: Yes, we will not be changing how you contact support or our support levels. Any changes will be communicated proactively before they go into effect. As always, feel free to email us at support@lessonly.com with questions or concerns, and we'll help you out.

Q: Will Lessonly be integrated into Seismic?

A: Seismic and Lessonly have had a deep partnership for years now, and Lessonly is already integrated with Seismic! More than 45 joint customers are already using the two products together seamlessly.

Q: Will my account manager change?

A: In the near term, no. Our customer relationships are extremely important to us, and any future changes will be made thoughtfully and with you and your teammates top of mind.

Q: Will Lessonly continue to follow their planned product roadmap?

A: We will continue to develop all Lessonly products, and we will develop these same products to richly integrate with Seismic.

Q: What's the plan for LlamaNation?

A: LlamaNation will continue to grow and engage with Lessonly's 1,000+ customer community for the foreseeable future.
